PERSONAL AND SOCIETY.

One of the brides of the past year has gone to house-keeping, and she has been fortunate enough to secure a servan; who is a jewel of a girl. She can do anything, and when necessity demands is willing to make almost any sacrifice in order to do what she thinks the mistress would like to have done. Not many days ago a young lady home from college called on the young house-keeper. The servant answered the bell, said that Mrs. A. was in and ushered the visitor into the parlor, before taking the card up stairs to the lady of the house. She delivered the card, returned to the parlor, seated herself and began to entertain the caller. The latter, supposing she was one of the family, told her of her experiences at college, asked various questions, were chatting merrily when the caller suddenly asked if she was related to Mrs. A. She answered "No," and said she was the cook. It is said that the caller was embarrassed, and that that the caller was embarrassed, and that the hostess entered at that moment and the cook retired. To all appearances the cook was capable of entertaining the caller, which all cooks are not. It is certain that if the college-bred young woman was at all chagrined at the thought of talking so interestingly to the servant, who evidently appreciated all that she said, one branch of her education has been seriously neglected. In the "Looking Backward" era the college young woman will have no advantages, social or otherwise, over the cook.

Among the social gatherings of the past week were the several tennis games which have been played nearly every day. The largest and most fashionably-attended was the one with which Mr. Ed Hunt entertained his friends. Four courts were provided, and his sister, Mrs. Harry Crossland, was hostess for the company, serving the refreshments in her new home on Alabama street. Mrs. Dr. Allen gave a dancing party during the week, and Miss Dye took a picnic party to Millersville. Miss Annie Butler gave a ennis party for afternoon and dancing for evening. The Merritt-Fisher wedding, and the Graydon garden party were also in the week's list. Miss Grace Wasson entertained a few friends at luncheon, and se veral private suppers have been given at the "Hope Cottage" at Allisonville, making the week a very busy one socially.

During the past few days a large number of friends have received the cards of Mrs. Jefferson C. Davis announcing the marriage of her niece, Ida May Davis, and Lieut. Leighton Finley. Tenth United States Cavalry, at Albuquerque, N. M., July 9, 1889. Mrs. Leighton Finley was held in high esteem here, and the many friends marriage service was in the beautiful little Episcopal Church at Albuquerque, where many of the friends of Mrs. Davis and Lieutenant Finley had gathered to witness the ceremony and offer their best wishes. All the army friends of the groom were in full official dress and the bride were an exquisite gown of heavy white ottoman silk, court train and brocaded front of silver and gold. The waist was in V shape with duchess lace of beautiful pattern. White flowers completed the costume. After the ceremony an elegant dinner was served. The bridal party left for their quarters at Fort Apache. Nearing, there they were met by twenty officers and escorted to the end of their journey where they were received with great honor. The band of the Tenth Cavalry serenaded them immediately after the reception.

-- MONDAY --

We propose to make some startling low prices to close lines of goods which we have determined not to carry over, but will make prices that will sell them quickly.

One lot 36-inch Printed Batiste. The price will be 7 cts.; opening price 20c.

One lot of Fine Ginghams, 6c, regular 10c quality; all goods

Another lot of 36-inch Suitings at 121c; same as last week's offerings. This is the great bargain of the season. See goods displayed in show-window.

MARSEILLES SPREADS-We shall offer another big line Monday, prices ranging from 57c up. They went with a rush last week. See them Monday. They will not last long at prices named.

LACE CURTAINS—We have yet in stock a good assortment of medium and fine qualities. We must have the room, and shall, during the week, give you lower prices than ever before named on this line of goods. We are determined to close them at some price.

BLACK CECELLIAN CLOTHS.

BLACK CECELLIAN CLOTHS-We put on sale Mon day our own importation of the above, for early fall wear. They are 54-inches wide, at 75c per yard; equal in quality and finish to goods that sold for $1.25 last spring.

Full lines of Black Goods in all the new weaves. Mohairs Tamese Cloths, Barathea Cords, Whip Cords, Serges, etc.

Remnants of Dress Goods at less than half price, to close.

-THE-BOSTON STORE.

The inside history of our cut is unknown to We infer it would be one of pleasure mingled with more or less pain. Our object is purely to catch your attention, and having caught it, we proceed to remark that the coming week at our establishment will witness an upheaval of all established ideas as to valuation of merchandise. We declare ourselves to be in possession of the most remarkable values ever known in the history of trade. The prices we quote are bona-fide, and, as usual at the Boston Store, everything is as talked about.
